Under the banner 'My Profession, My Pride', St Andrews Hospital held its white uniform launch for all the nursing categories on the 1st of October 2013.

The day started with a parade around the hospital showcasing the new uniform to the staff and the public and later they proceeded to the hospital hall where all nurses were motivated. The Assistant Nursing Manager, Mrs C.M. Silwane, who was leading the parade on this day, gave an inspiring motivation to all the nurses, reminding them about the meaning of being a nurse.

Pastor G. Nzama from Harding International Centre who was preaching the word of God on that day also told the nurses that white uniform represents cleanliness, purity and a well groomed individual; he also motivated the nurses to maintain the standard of being the beacon of hope for all patients in Umuziwabantu. Furthermore he complimented the nurses saying that they look like angels in their white uniform.
