YOUNG HEALTH PROFESSIONALS REFLECT ON THE YOUTH MONTH THEME

DR NKOSINATHI MLAMBO
MEDICAL OFFICER - COMMUNITY SERVICE PROGRAMME

MSELENI DISTRICT HOSPITAL
UMKHANYAKUDE DISTRICT

I am Nkosinathi Mlambo, a Community Service Medical Officer at Mseleni District Hospital.

It is an amazing experience that as Youth I'm given the opportunity to make a difference in this Global pandemic of Covid-19.

As youth, the future of South Africa is in our hands. We dedicate ourselves everyday to provide the best possible quality of care to our patients.

As everyone runs away from patients with Covid -19, we run towards them because our primary purpose is to save lives.

We make a difference inside and outside the Hospital premises, it is our duty as young professionals to grow South Africa that we would love to see in the future.

We provide care to our Covid-19 patients .

OTHOBOTHINI CHC
UMKHANYAKUDE DISTRICT

My name is Khayelihle Zinhle Cele, I'm employed as an intern enrolled nurse at Othobothini CHC and am currently working in the community to screen and test for Covid19 under the PHC nursing stream.

My name is Khayelihle Zinhle Cele employed as intern enrolled nurse at Othobothini CHC and currently allocated at Community screening and testing of Covid19 under PHC nursing stream. I have learnt that COVID- 19 is SARS COV2 that is transmitted through droplet infection from one person to another, and or by physical contact with the person who has been confirmed as having the virus. The important thing to prevent the spread of the virus is through social distancing and following infection, prevention and control guidelines at all costs. The community has been health educated strongly on the importance of the correct measures to apply to prevent unnecessary spread , like practicing of social distancing , wearing face mask at all the times when in public places, sneezing and coughing through the elbow just to mention a few

Premier launched screening in testing in April 2020

KZN Premier Mr Sihle Zikalala, and Umkhanyakude District Mayor Cllr T.S. Mkhombo launching massive screening and testing.

KwaZulu Natal Premier Mr Sihle Zikalala on 30th April 2020 officially launched a massive Covid-19 Screening and Testing in Umkhanyakude District. However, the implementation of the Programme had started in the previous two weeks. He was accompanied by Umkhanyakude District Mayor Cllr T.S. Mkhombo. Premier and the Mayor also sanitized residential areas in Mkuze and observed health workers who were conducting screening and testing. Premier Zikalala reiterated that community members must continue to keep social distance, wash hands or sanitize, wear cloth masks, use elbow when coughing, consult department of health if feeling unwell and observe Lockdown regulations. Premier Zikalala commended the district for maintaining good status quo in a fight against Covid-19.

UMkhanyakude's screening and testing campaign drive in April-June

Health workers endured windy, sunny, rainy, hot and cold weather conditions in their determined war against Covid-19. This was during April-June when the department was doing massive door to door screening and testing for Covid-19. Enormous dedication was seen during that time when health workers visited supermarkets, shopping complexes, households and many other public areas, not only to test and screen, but to raise awareness about the pandemic to the community and provide health education on precautionary measures such as: social distancing, wearing of masks, and washing of hands.

“Being a doctor was my mom’s dream” – Dr Lungile Hobe

Building up rural healthcare in Mseleni

Dr Hobe earned her MBChB degree from the University of KwaZulu-Natal in 2006 and joined Mseleni Hospital in 2010. In 2018, she received a Discovery Foundation Rural Institutional Award to improve the quality of care at Mseleni Hospital, a 185-bed rural district hospital with 10 primary healthcare clinics that serves about 92 000 people.

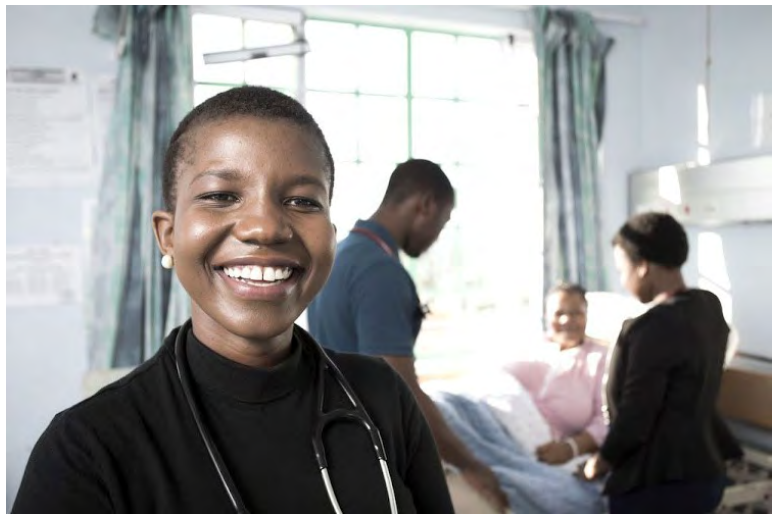

Mseleni is more than a hospital, it’s a community centre that takes care of its people. In 2004, Mseleni Hospital spearheaded the clinic-based initiation of antiretrovirals. It has developed specialist surgical services, built a strong network of clinics and community caregivers, and is involved in orphan care, youth projects, an early childhood development centre, and more.

“I hope to witness quality medical care being offered to rural communities,” she says. “My idea is a model that goes beyond the hospital into the community. I think COVID-19 has made us realise this can be done with proper planning, infrastructure allocation and the will to do it.”

Stepping into a new role during a pandemic

Since the COVID-19 pandemic reached South Africa, Dr Hobe’s duties have shifted from being a doctor and seeing patients to managing the hospital.

“I am grateful for having had a medical manager who was very dedicated to her work. Before she left the hospital, she made sure that all the groundwork had been done to prepare the hospital for COVID-19,” Dr Hobe says. “I have had to step up and act as medical manager while we await the appointment of a new manager. Even in this position, I feel I was properly prepared by the previous manager, which made a big difference.”

“There is definitely a lot more work to be done, but I appreciate the medical team of Mseleni Hospital for always pulling together and supporting each other,” she says. “I have a clinical manager who is very experienced; he is my sounding board and I value our chats a lot.”

“Personally, of course, there’s daily anxiety of possibly getting infected and this affects the interactions I have with my family,” Dr Hobe adds. “But they have all been very supportive and for this I’m grateful, especially to my husband.”

Massive health education by Malaria Control Programme

Malaria Control Programme Environmental Health Practitioners and partners engaged in a massive health education and health promotion campaign on Covid-19 to various communities. The team conducted health education such as: encouraging people to comply to regulations, involve themselves to health screening and also correcting myths about Covid-19.

More emphasis was highlighted to the role that can be played by the community members to prevent the spread of the virus, such as hand washing with soap and running water, staying at home and social distancing. The community was also warned about false information that is especially spread through social media.
