Empathe Clinic Outreach Team teach mobilized sector departments to the Child Protection Awareness drive that was focusing on schools. This year, the focus is on Oral health, child abuse (victim to physical, sexual or emotional abuse) and exploitation as well as giving awareness on social ills that may affect the growth of school pupil.

The team led by a passionate health professional Mr. Ayanda Hadebe elaborated that every year National Child Protection Week is held in South Africa annually to raise awareness of the rights of children – their primary objective towards the 2018 is to ensure that children are well safeguarded and they are given the deepest health care at their early age to prevent health risk associated with their health while at school.

Ms Lungile Mahlobo – Dundee hospital oral health practitioner demonstrated the best oral health practices that can benefit the well-being of children to Dundee school learners and teachers. “Teaching children proper oral care at a young age is an investment in their health that will pay lifelong dividends. It is important to help children protect their teeth and gums and that alone greatly reduce their risk of getting cavities,” added Ms Mahlobo. She further taught them to brush teethes twice a day and explained that using a tooth brush alone is a good thing to do. She said even those don’t afford to buy toothpaste they can continue brush their teeth with water.

On the other hand Ms Kgabo Lepheha – Ward Base Nurse told learners to report sexual abuse at the nearest police station. She further advised learners to avoid being the victims of any abusive behavior – be it sexual abuse at home, emotional abuse or any potential abuse at school.
