STRATEGIC PLANNING

A key concept in the process of strategic planning is that of “Responsible Conversation”. This is when individuals enter into conversation with shared intentions that carefully consider the accuracy of the information shared and the manner in which it is shared. This concept is based on the principles of transparency, truthfulness and awareness of related socio-cultural and socio-economic impacts or implications. Responsible conversations allows for respectful and factual communication in the workplace which aims to facilitate a safe space atmosphere. Such an atmosphere leads to thought provoking and creative idea sharing which helps achieve goals more effectively. This concept in the work place also fosters team synergy or collaboration. Colleagues learn to use their various skills and strengths to complement each other. Responsible Conversation provides a Platform for getting great Ideas. Presenting the prepared speeches is one thing to produce ideas in a freely environment that allows in an environment that you are comfortable about knowing that no one is going to judge you, no one is going to say ohh! This idea is outdated this particular person is not updated with the current trend.

REV S SHANGASE
MOTIVATIONAL SPEAKER

Responsible conversation should be the foundation of all communication at HGRH. As we journey to achieve our goals, we encourage everyone to implement this respectful and factual communication method. Let us work together, through responsible conversations, to improve our services to the community we serve/our community.

“I want to walk into a family of HGRH who is free from gossip, where people are able to converse with one another. You end up gossiping about the things you can open up about. Let’s be free from gossip.
